

CIA AGENT TOFTE EXPECTED TO 'UNBURDEN' SELF ✓

Moscow IZVESTIYA 7 August 1966--A

(G. Daynisherko dispatch from Stockholm: "Agents or Burglars?")

(Text) The U.S. Central Intelligence Agency has become involved in a regular scandal. The U.S. espionage headquarters has been exposed in rather ignoble activities which come under the category of pure crime.

According to reports from Copenhagen, CIA agents penetrated into the house of 59-year-old Dane Hans Tofte and stole a secret document, while at the same time taking valuables worth 100,000 Kroner.

Hans Tofte, of course, was not by accident an object of energetic action on the part of the CIA. As early as World War II he began to cooperate with the U.S. intelligence service. At first Tofte worked in Europe, then he was switched to Korea. He performed his last "operation" in Guatemala during the days of preparations for the ignominious invasion of Cuba. According to the papers, the stolen document was something like a diary in which Tofte, who is now already an ex-agent, described his adventures much too frankly.

Judging by everything, Tofte's notes promised a considerable unmasking of the activities of the U.S. intelligence service. Swedish papers hint that, embittered by the actions of his former agent-friends, Tofte will begin to unburden himself and that this will be no small thing.
